Course Information

Seminar Title

Mother Nature, Disruptive Persons, Bad Luck: Emergency Preparedness in the Dental Practice

Course Overview

This presentation will examine the three types of emergencies most likely to be encountered in the dental practice: medical, environmental and violence. The presentation will focus on assessing the risk of these events occurring, and the proper preparation for them (including acquisition of resources and training of staff). The instruction will consist of an interactive lecture, supplemented by video presentation.

Objectives

This program is appropriate for dentists and staff members.

At the conclusion of the program, you should be able to:

1. Identify three situations that require timely response and actions.
2. List three things that can be modified in the practice to enhance safety and emergency responses.
3. Evaluate how implementing improvements can reduce risk in the practice.
4. Identify behaviors with a potential for violence.

Speakers

Theodore (Ted) Passineau, JD, HRM, RPLU, CPHRM, FASHRM is a Senior Patient Safety & Risk Consultant with MedPro. He has worked in the field of medical professional liability since 1987. His professional achievements include experience as a medical malpractice defense attorney, risk management consultant, director of risk management, and director of continuing medical education for both doctor-owned and commercial professional liability insurers.

Ted has provided instruction to thousands of healthcare providers across the United States and internationally and has written extensively on various professional liability topics.

In addition to his academic credentials, Ted has been trained in healthcare mediation and conflict resolution by the Harvard School of Public Health, and clinician-patient communication by the Institute for Healthcare Communication.

His affiliations include Adjunct Professor of Medical Law at the Thomas M. Cooley Law School, advisory panel member for a physician litigation stress website, and former board member of the Tri-County Medical Control Authority.

W. Patrick Sullivan, Esq. represents professional health care providers, including doctors, dentists, nurses, and nursing homes in malpractice claims and in matters pending before professional licensing boards. His experience includes successful jury trials in numerous counties throughout Wisconsin, as well as several hearings before the Department of Regulation and Licensing.

He graduated from Tufts University (BA), Columbia University (MA) and Marquette Law School (with honors). He also defends health care providers and clinics against employment discrimination claims before the ERD and EEOC. He is a frequent presenter at risk management seminars for health care providers across Wisconsin. Since 1996, Pat has represented all of PIP's insured dentists in Wisconsin malpractice cases.
